

DOESN'T WANT OF AMERICA

Some Other Information about World Wide Mis- sion Activities.

There has been heard in recent months the efforts of American missionaries to transfer their plants and operations to China now that the Chinese are out of the hands of the following from the Chinese of missions gives light on some recent developments along that line.

Reports are current that American missionaries are trying hard to find a market for their liquors in China. This has aroused the indignation of the Chinese, and we are glad that they are aware of this new peril. Fortunately the press also voices its protest, as may be seen from this notice in a Peking paper:

"We have no desire to drive out the foreigner, but we wish to see the foreigner not. Apparently the brewers think they must educate the Chinese in the delights of Western Bacchanalianism. Why do not the Westerners come to teach us better manners than indulging in opium, cigarettes, and narcotics? May we not express the hope that our Government will put a ban on such pernicious activities in China."

New Cathedral in Uganda.
The new Cathedral at Kampala, Uganda, probably the largest Christian church in Africa. At the consecration services which took place last September the vast building was quickly filled, and the throng outside was estimated at 20,000. The singing was led by a large surpliced choir of African boys. The following Sunday 364 communicants sat down to the Lord's Supper.

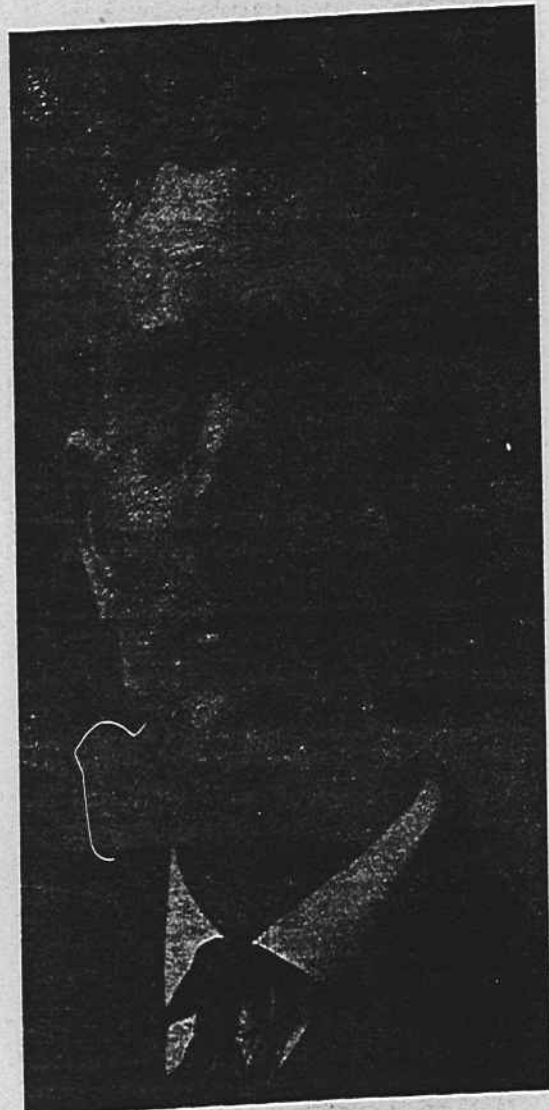

The First Christian missionaries went to Uganda in 1876. Since that time the number of Christian churches in the Protectorate has grown from one to 2000; communicants now number 6,000 and baptized Christians 100,000. The network of schools all in Christian control has extended the influence of the Church far beyond its numerical strength. Uganda has a contribution to give to the science of missions.

Revival on Nias Island.
When the fiftieth anniversary of mission work on Nias Island (Dutch East Indies) was celebrated in 1915 there were on the island about 18,000 baptized Christians. In two years the number had increased to 30,000 and there has been noted a remarkable spiritual development, evidenced not so much by numbers as by the impulse to measure up life according to the plumb line standard of Christianity. Stolen goods have been returned, quarrels amicably settled, genuine repentance thus being proved. The sale of Bibles and religious literature has increased. Hymns with original melodies have been composed by native Christians.

Will Be Aged Liqueur Then.
A jug of Jamaica rum left at a Pennsylvania farmhouse by some British officers in 1778 came into the possession of the Wistar Institute, University of Pennsylvania, and after being tipped and the contents "tasted" by the members of the board of managers in 1832 when the building was dedicated, was sealed, and will not be opened again until the centenary celebration in 1992.

THE Farmers' Friend

The Farmers of West Virginia never had a finer opportunity of electing a Friend of Agriculture to the State Governorship.

Fred Paul Grosscup was born and reared on a farm, and he learned farming of a necessity. In later life, when he engaged in manufacturing and development, he yet clung to the farm and is today a practical farmer, owning and operating one of the largest and most productive farms in the Kanawha Valley.

One of the first things he did when building the town of Dunbar (now a city of more than 3,000 souls) was to provide ground for gardening to every man in his employ. This he has continued to do from year to year, offering his men all the ground they could work, and very frequently providing the seeds for planting. He gave many acres of ground at Dunbar and elsewhere to be used as "war gardens."

He has recently invested in a large tract of land in Putnam County, and is engaged in cutting it up into ten-acre farms, with home-building, barn, poultry yards, etc., which he will offer for sale and rent to reliable farmers, hoping thereby to provide a portion of West Virginia with the necessities and comforts of life that now come from foreign markets.

His elected Governor he pledges himself to a betterment of agricultural conditions throughout the State. His platform of principles assures much to the Agriculturist. Fred Paul Grosscup is the Farmers' Opportunity.
